

Gov. Ed Mechem Announces a Salute to Sergeants

Initiative is Profit for Employees

Initiative and imagination pays dividends at White Sands Missile Range.

In a special ceremony this week, 59 civilian employees at the national missile center received, under the Army's Incentive Awards Program, certificates and monetary awards totaling more than $6,000.

Chief of Staff Col. Martin Cunningham and Civilian Personnel Officer R. J. Autry made presentations which included an award for a patent and citations in every category of the program.

James D. Perdue, Range Operations Directorate, received $100 for patenting an improved process for displaying digital data in a graphical format. The process, utilized in missile data reduction, covers a wide range of values — positive and negative — on a comparatively narrow chart and with comparatively simple recording means. Through the process, data are readable for both analog and digital purposes.

Perdue, who is a physicist supervisor, has other patents pending. He lives in Las Cruces.

Eight people were cited for Special Act or Service. Among them were Robert A. Harrison, Test and Evaluation Directorate, $65, and Colman M. Polvado, ROD, (Continued on Page 7)

Cunningham in as New Chief of Staff

Col. Martin Cunningham, Ordnance Corps, is the new chief of staff here.

He succeeds Col. John C. Bane who was recently named deputy commander at the range.

Col. Cunningham is not a newcomer to WSMR having been stationed here from 1956 until 1959. During that time he served first as chief of the Flight Simulation Laboratory, Ordnance Mission, and as deputy chief of the Integrated Range Mission.

His most recent assignment was commanding officer, U. S. Army General Depot at Nancy, France, for the past three years.

While there, Col. Cunningham received the Knight of the Palms Academic from the French government for promoting professional and cultural educational facilities for the French civilian personnel employed by the Dept. of the Army.

Fix-It-Yourself Beginning in Modern Army

The Army, which prides itself on "taking care of its own," recently developed a Self-Help repair program. The program has been established throughout the five-state Army area of New Mexico, Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

Under the new plan troop units and post quarters residents are encouraged to make minor repairs to their government quarters. The program is expected to conserve military funds by limiting requirements for work normally accomplished by engineer repairmen, and would reduce the cost of utilities through closer maintenance of household facilities.

Upper Air Authorities to Hold Meeting

A dozen of the nation's leading authorities on the secrets of the upper atmosphere will meet at Texas Western College Oct. 31 and Nov. 1 in a symposium sponsored by the U.S. Army Electronics Research and Development Activity.

Willis Webb of the Electronics R&D Activity will join 11 representatives of leading national scientific organizations in sessions of the Upper Atmospheric Rocket and Balloon Research Committee.

The committee is a part of the National Academy of Sciences, an organization that cooperated with the Electronics Activity at White Sands Missile Range in establishing a meteorological rocket firing network that (Continued on Page 7)

'Shape Up Or Else' Looms for Men Here

The 1950-53 conflict in Korea, is now a dim memory for a large segment of U.S. Army soldiers, but the thought of that Asian peninsula evokes a lesson not easily forgotten. The ever-present, rugged, steep mountains were a challenge, even to those physically fit.

For those who were not, Korea often meant capture, injury, ruination of health ... and even death.

A recently published Army-wide questionnaire disclosed that almost 50 percent of all units provided less than two hours of organized physical training each week, and that 10 percent of the units provided no physical training program at all for the specialized and staff personnel.

Not every soldier is endowed with a body that Michelangelo would covet as a model. We can't all hope to become another Steve Reeves, but we can make the most of the body we have (Continued on Page 7)

Promotions Sail in for Navy Men

New stripes will be going on the uniform sleeves of some 29 White Sands Navy-men next month as a result of successful competition in the August service-wide advancement in rating examination.

Junior NRA Members Shoot Qualification

National Rifle Association Qualification awards for the 1961-62 season were presented to nine members of the White Sands Junior Rifle Club by Major General J. Frederick Thorlin, Commanding General, White Sands Missile Range, at an organization meeting in the Rocket Room of the Community Center, WSMR on 10 October 1962 at 1900 hrs.

General Thorlin in his remarks following the presentation, commended the young people on their marksmanship, saying "despite the technology of the missile and space age, it is recognized that the ultimate weapon in the defense of our country is the man with the rifle in his hands. His ability to use that rifle may some day be the deciding factor in our freedom."

The following boys were awarded qualification medals, certificates and lapel pins: Lewis Childress — Sharpshooter

HONORS SERGEANT—Gov. Edwin L. Mechem, honoring White Sands Missile Range Sergeant Major Harry J. Moosegion and some 260,000 other Army sergeants, has proclaimed the week of Oct. 22 as "Salute to Sergeants" across New Mexico. The week also takes in the Oct. 24 firing demonstration of the Sergeant missile at White Sands, a show under simulated tactical conditions to be watched by top United States and

A Tribute to 260,000 Sergeants

Governor Edwin L. Mechem has proclaimed the week of Oct. 22 as a "Salute to Sergeants" all across New Mexico and at White Sands Missile Range where Army troops will demonstrate the Sergeant missile next Wednesday.

Similar proclamations were made by Las Cruces Mayor Ed Noble and El Paso Mayor Ralph Seitsinger.

The proclamation, tributes to the 260,000 sergeants of the United States Army "as the traditional backbone of the service," before an expected 300 U. S. and NATO military leaders, missile contractors and area and national press representatives.

The Sergeant missile handling and firing demonstration will be conducted at the 4,000 square-mile White Sands Missile Range by troops of the 3rd Missile Battalion of the 38th Artillery out of Ft. Sill, Okla.

Referring to both man and missile, Gov. Mechem pointed out the traditional characteristics of the Army Sergeant — versatile, reliable and tough.

Expected to witness the demonstration of these characteristics by both the fighting man and the missile during the fast-paced Oct. 24 program at the national missile range are Army Secretary Cyrus Vance and high-ranking Army officers who will watch the mobile ballistic missile go through its tactical paces for the first time.

Missile contractor representatives participating in the full-day program at White Sands will be headed by officials of the Sperry Rand Corp., whose Sperry Utah Co. in Salt Lake City is producing the missile. Also included in the industrial group will be Ling-Temco-Vought, Thiokol Chemical, Minneapolis Honeywell, and Fruehauf Trailer Co.

Red Drive on Religion Is a Sign of Insecurity

In Russia, under the Soviet Constitution, citizens are guaranteed the right of religious worship.

Yes, that's what the document says. Just like our own Constitution.

Or is it? What's the real picture?

The real picture is that the Communist Party, which holds a steel grip on the Russian people, has launched an all-out campaign for "popularization of atheism." Pravda, the party newspaper, says the anti-religious offensive was urged by the presidium of the Central Council of Trade Unions which controls the mass of Soviet labor.

Press, radio and television are to go all-out in praise of atheism. Atheist reading rooms are to be established and atheist evening lecture sessions organized. Workers are to urge "believing" comrades to abandon their religious faith.

And how will they do this? "Popularization of atheism," says the Trades Unions Council, "must be based on the outstanding achievements of Soviet science and the materialistic point of view."

After all their years of rule, the Red bosses must feel mighty insecure about the appeal of godlessness to the masses. And this is more than speculation. When a group of American churchmen recently made a three-week visit to the Soviet Union, they reported that all the services they attended "were always full."

Said one of them: "The strongest impression I shall take away with me is the vitality of Russian church worship."

Indeed something for Khrushchev & Co. to think about.

Circular Spells Out Proper Marking Ways

Washington (AFPS)—The Army has spelled out, in a new circular, the proper method for marking of shoes and boots, head gear, belts, helmet liners and duffel bags.

According to Circular 746-10, all but the duffel bag will be marked with the full name, including middle initial and the person's serial number minus such prefixes as U.S. and R.A.

The name will be position-

Winter Uniform To Be Donned By Servicemen

The U.S. Army Personnel Center, Oakland Army Terminal, Calif. has announced that military personnel reporting for overseas assignment to the Far East must report in winter uniform.

Nine major overseas areas

ed parallel to the handle so that the tops of the letters are on a line two inches below the web patches securing the handle.

Where space permits, the serial number will be centered beneath the name. Otherwise it will follow the name with a dash separating the two.

Foot gear marking is to be located inside the right quarter near the top; head gear, on the sweatband, except that when the band served by the Oakland Army Terminal require continuous summer uniform: Hawaii, Philippines, Guam, Puerto Rico, Thailand, Vietnam, Eniwetok, Laos and Cambodia.

For those being assigned turns down it will be placed on the underside of the band; belts will be marked on the inside directly from the metal tip, and helmet liners marked on the inside of the band.

All markings other than the duffel bag will be made with indelible water-proof ink, using white ink on dark items and black on light items. The duffel bag marking, with characters not less than one inch or more than two inches in height, will be made with red paste paint.

to Cambodia, summer uniform is required wear from the continental U.S. to Cambodia on a year round basis. Those assigned to all other areas served by the Oakland Terminal must report in winter uniform, but are instructed to have in their possession the appropriate uniform required for the area to which they are being assigned.

Individuals with orders directing purchase and wear of civilian clothing may report, process and travel in civilian attire. Change over dates to winter uniform for major overseas areas not listed above and serviced by the Oakland Army Terminal are: Japan, Oct. 15; Korea, Oct. 15; Taiwan, Nov. 1; Hong Kong, Nov. 15, and Okinawa, Dec. 3.

All personnel reporting to the Oakland Army Terminal for overseas assignment must comply with paragraphs 141, 12a and 18a of Army Regulation 612-35. Those not complying will be required to purchase the necessary items in order to perform details and provide for comfort and appearance enroute in accordance with prescribed seasonal uniform.

At Your Service Club

A spritely Halloween Dance will be held this evening at your Countdown Service Club. Young ladies from the El Paso U.S.O. will be the guests of the Club and members of the WAC Co. will act as hostesses. Costumes are optional but experience shows that a mask adds spice and fun to any occasion. Festivities will include a costume promenade and contest, a Spanish dancer and fortune teller, and witches' brew. Come early and stay late but beware the goblins.

Saturday evening will see the advent of a program dedicated to the WAC's of White Sands. Because these young ladies are such a wonderful asset to the post, it was felt that they deserved a night designed especially for their enjoyment. "WAC's Night Out" will feature a record hop m.c.ed by Barry Cronkite. Bring a date or come and get acquainted in an informal and friendly atmosphere.

Berlin will be the focal point of an intriguing film prepared and presented by Sgt. Warnock on Tuesday, Oct. 23rd. In this period of increased tension this tragic city's history will be of interest to all.

The Bridge Party planned for Wednesday night accidentally appeared on the monthly schedule as a "Bribe Party." Freudian slip or not it is sure to be fun and we promise winners will be determined by skill!

Have you noticed the wonderful additions to the Prize Cabinet in the hall? The display now boasts of cameras, watches, butane lighters, mosaic and model car kits and many more.

In preparation for an anticipated Variety Show series sponsored jointly by the Countdown Service Club and the Entertainment section, the staff is searching for talent. Why not drop us a hint if you would be interested in participating?

The Idea Boxes appearing around the Club are your invitation to share with us your ideas as to what programs, etc., you would find most appealing.

Don't forget to submit your guess for the weight of the pumpkins. The winner will be announced at the Halloween Party on Oct. 30th.

Sands Men Affected By Military Physical Conditioning Program

Combat Proficiency Tests are currently being held here at WSMR in conjunction with the present Army Physical Training doctrine.

Troop Command is administering the program which is applicable to all enlisted personnel and officers up to and including the age of 40.

Training facilities and the course are located north of the Baseball Field and opposite Bell Gym. The test will consist of five events and a minimum of 300 points is required to successfully pass the test. In addition to a total point score, the following test event standards are established as guides in measurement of physical combat readiness.

- (1) 40-Yard Low Crawl — 36 seconds — 60 points
- (2) Horizontal Ladder — 36 rungs — 60 points
- (3) Dodge, Run and Jump — 26.5 seconds —

- 60 points
- (4) Grenade Throw — 15 points — 60 points
- (5) One-Mile Run — 8 minutes, 30 seconds — 60 points

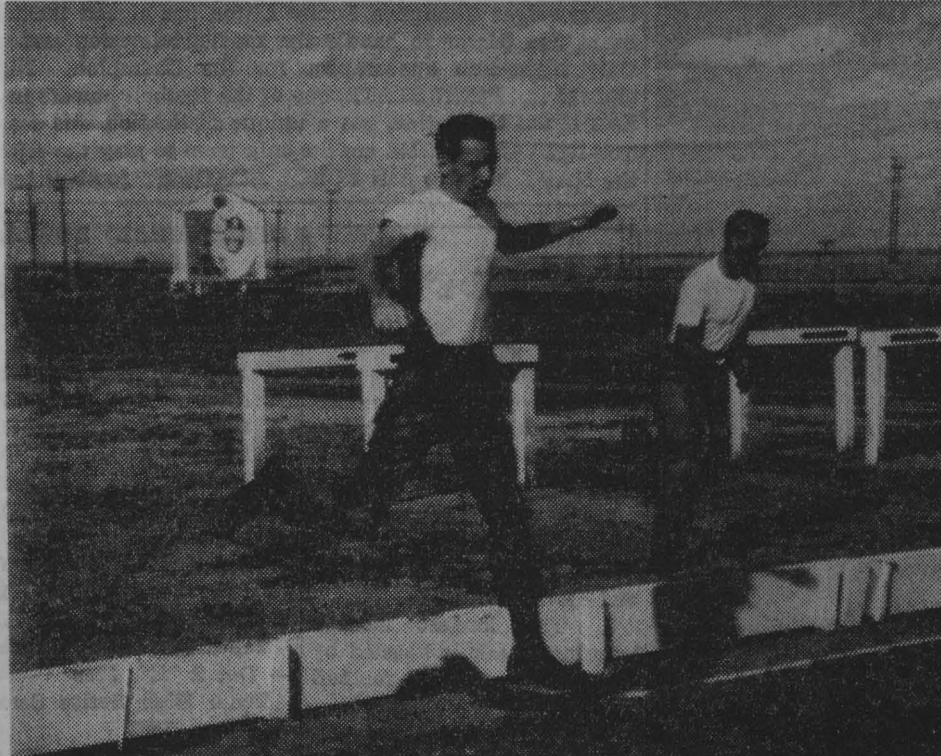

The Physical Combat Proficiency Test is the standard test for the measurement of the physical skills of running, crawling, throwing, climbing, dodging, and jumping. Basically, these skills require agility, coordination, strength, and endurance.

Each man will have two chances to pass the course. If he fails both times, he will undergo a stringent Physical Training program conducted by the C.O. of Troop Command.

ALL PRO—From trying to stop Jimmy Brown, the Cleveland Browns All-Pro Fullback, to trying to stop crab-grass is a far cry BUT Pfc Monte Lee is taking change rather happily. Pfc Lee, who was a professional football player with the St. Louis Cardinals before being drafted into the Army in January of this year, is now grounds maintenance man at the WSMR Golf Course, Monte, 6-4 and weighing 220 pounds, attended the University of Texas, where he played end, linebacker and guard. He played with the Philadelphia Eagles last year during the exhibition season and was picked up by the Cardinals when he was placed on the injury waiver list. He played linebacker for the Cardinals last year and was also a standby end although he never played the position. Pfc Lee is married and lives in Las Cruces with his wife, who teaches school there. After his football playing days are over he plans to go into farming near Plainsview, Texas. When asked what his outlook in the NFL was for this year he said it looked to him like it would be Green Bay in the Western Division but he wouldn't commit himself in the Eastern Division. He said it could be nearly any one of the teams as they were all strong. When asked about the Cardinals' chances, he said they should finish in the top three in the Eastern Division, barring injuries like they had last year.

day night that any other gap that may have existed has disappeared. The Bulldogs proved their prowess Friday night as they became serious contenders in the District 2AA race by bringing the contest with the powerhouse Hobbs Eagles to a 6-6 deadlock.

The Cruces High team will meet the Wildcats in Clovis.

Looking at the Hobbs game, the New Mexico Activity Association rules provide that "tie score games will count in the percentages of the league standings as one-half game won and one-half game lost. The tie score will be broken only if the two teams that play this tie game finish the season tied for the championship of the league. In that case the tie will be broken as follows: (a) the team with the most penetrations will be the winner . . ."

VARIPLOTTER—Standing by a Variplotter in the Flight Simulation Laboratories at White Sands Missile Range are M. M. Shropshire, mathematician (left) and N. B. Binkle, electronic engineer. These men were mainly responsible for the first successful real time flight experiment. During actual field research experiment facilities were used at the Air Force Missile Development Center at Holloman. (U.S. Army Photo)

Mr. Flight Simulation Guenter Hintze

The Army's "Mr. Flight Simulation" here recently was honored for his outstanding contributions to research and development.

Popular German-born Guenter Hintze, prime developer and chief of Flight Simulation Laboratory, Test and Evaluation Directorate, was presented a "WSMR Achievement Award for Research and Development" by Chief of Staff, Col. Martin Cunningham. The honorary award is the first of its kind ever given at the national missile range.

For more than 20 years, from Peenemuende, Germany, to south-central New Mexico, Hintze has played a big role in missile development.

His accomplishment in developing flight simulation laboratory facilities at WSMR for non-destructive evaluation of missile and rocket systems by means of mathematical analysis, and flight simulation techniques, has saved the government untold millions of dollars. In this lab — packed with electronic gadgets, devices and more than 100 civilian employees — missiles are "fired on paper" at a mere fraction of the cost of a real missile.

From a beginning as Hintze's dream in 1952, the lab was established and in full operation in 1957 under the deft supervision of its creator.

The electronics scientist entered the missile field in 1941 — following ten years as an engineer in industry — when he was sent to Peenemuende to work on Hitler's crash missile program. Then in late 1945, with Dr. Werner von Braun and his group of scientists, he came to America and its embryo missile range, then known as White Sands Proving Ground.

At the desert range, Hintze, who was instrumental in the development of the V-2 control and electronics systems, supervised the reconstruction of prelaunching checkout facilities for the first testing of missiles in this country.

Hintze moved to Redstone Arsenal, Ala., with von Braun's group in 1950 and served as chief of Systems Analysis Laboratory until returning to WSMR in March 1952.

In citing Hintze for the special award, Col. Cunningham said in part, "for his significant contribution to the science of testing and evaluating missiles and missile systems that have resulted in meaningful tests and improved analysis techniques and procedures; for imaginative and progressive leadership; for important personal contributions to the concept underlying mathematical simulation and modeling, and the development of those concepts into practical and useful purposes."

The gregarious scientist is a member of the American Ordnance Association and the Association for Computing Machines. In addition, he is active in civic groups and church organizations in El Paso, where he lives with his wife and youngest son, Peter, at 3920 Trowbridge Drive.

Trip of the Week

Espanola Centuries Old

SANTA FE — In 1598, and thirty other families in Chimayo import the yarn but create their own weaving designs.

Santa Cruz, one of the early settlements, was erected a mile east of what today is Espanola, and still remains intact, inhabited by Spanish Americans whose heritage dates back for centuries.

The old plaza, now marked only with a cross, centers the small community. The wooden and adobe buildings, which still house stores and residences, border the plaza, and on one side stands the old church—still in daily use. The narrow street that leads from State Road 76 to the plaza, takes the visitor back three centuries. Here the native Spanish language is still spoken, although English is spoken as well.

Tradition of Ancestors
Further up the slopes of the Sangre de Cristo Mountain range, to the east of Santa Cruz, is Chimayo. Here, the weavers still apply their trade.

David Ortega continues his weaving trade in the traditions of his ancestors who, for six generations, have woven rugs, blankets, jackets and articles for general use. The visitor, whether from near or far, is welcome to visit the loom at the Ortega's weaving shop. From 1740 until 1900 the Ortega family raised their own sheep, collected the wool, made the weaving it. Now the Ortegas

Just up the small, winding dirt road from the weavers, stands the ancient church known as Santuario. The quiet little village, unchanged for centuries, still welcomes tourists.

Early Church Art

The acequias, or irrigation ditches, branch off from the small streams that flow out of the surrounding high mountains, past the old Santuario. The wooden, hand-carved doors of the latter have for centuries opened to thousands of pilgrims, whether they be Spanish, Indian or Anglo. The old Buletos, painted pictures and santos, the wood-carved figures of Saints remain just as they were nearly 300 years ago. It is primitive and rustic, but it is one of the outstanding examples of early church art in America.

The Santuario was built over a spring, and generations of penitents have scraped healing mud from its site in a small chapel to the side of the main altar. Nobody seems to remember the exact source of the church's sanctity, but the chapel's walls are hung with the crutches of the cured.

Wood Carvers

Climbing further up the mountains, the tourist passes the old village of Cordova, where the wood-carvers still ply their trade. And thence on to the Village of Truchas, 10 miles away, where the early Spanish Conquistadors set their farthest outpost, perched on the side of a mountain. The old adobe stores and residences are a link to ancient history and modern times, by the contrast of brightly painted signs, TV antennas and sleek new automobiles, compared to ancient decor, jackasses in nearby corrals, and a few horsedrawn wagons still lused for hauling wood from the rugged surroundings.

But life progresses at a slow pace and remembers the customs that are inherent in New Mexico—a part of our heritage.

Slipping down again into the valley, the tourist turns north, to Penasco, and thence east to Embudo, on U. S. 64, and south, along the magnificent Rio Grande, to Espanola. Here, ancient adobes combine with modern stores and homes again as memento to the visitor that no matter how much the evolution of modernization changes things in New Mexico, it will preserve forever its history, heritage, customs and beauty, known far and wide as The Land of Enchantment.

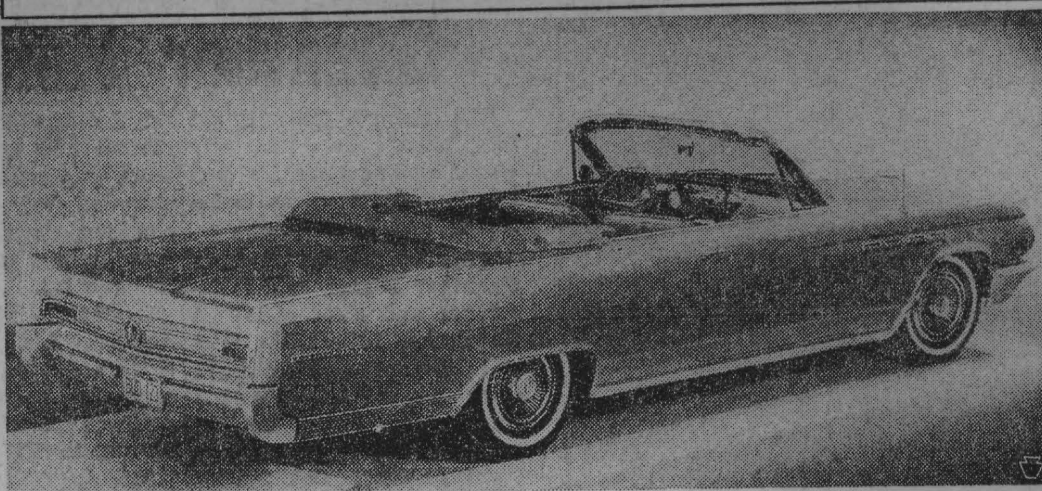

ROBERT JAMES IS ASTRONOMICAL SOCIETY HEAD

Robert James was elected president of the Astronomical Society of Las Cruces at the annual banquet meeting held Saturday evening at the Palms Motel Mecca Room. Also elected were Walter Haas, vice president; Mrs. Jed Durrenberger, secretary; Lyle Puntney, treasurer; and Gordon Solberg and Barton Bobzien, directors.

Jed Durrenberger, outgoing president, conducted the meeting, which was attended by thirty-five members and guests.

Dr. Walter E. Woehl, chief of Advanced Instrumentation Branch, Development Division AFMDC, Holloman Air Force Base, was guests speaker. He talked about the Facet Eye Camera System at

"Volpone" Is Presented By Playmakers

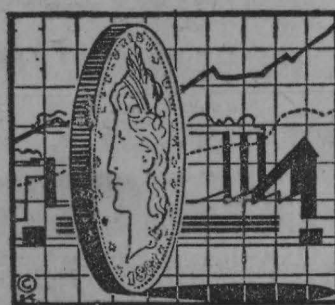

Playmakers at New Mexico State University are producing "Volpone," the Ben Jonson comedy Oct. 15 through 20.

The Elizabethan comedy is being presented in the Playmakers Theatre evenings at 8:15 p. m. under the direction of Hershel Zohn.

Director Zohn spoke enthusiastically about the work done by the student crews who put final touches on the stage settings and costumes. The designing and execution of costumes is a new venture for the Playmakers and Zohn feels they are producing extremely artistic results. The combination of several stage settings and costumes makes a particularly colorful production, according to Zohn.

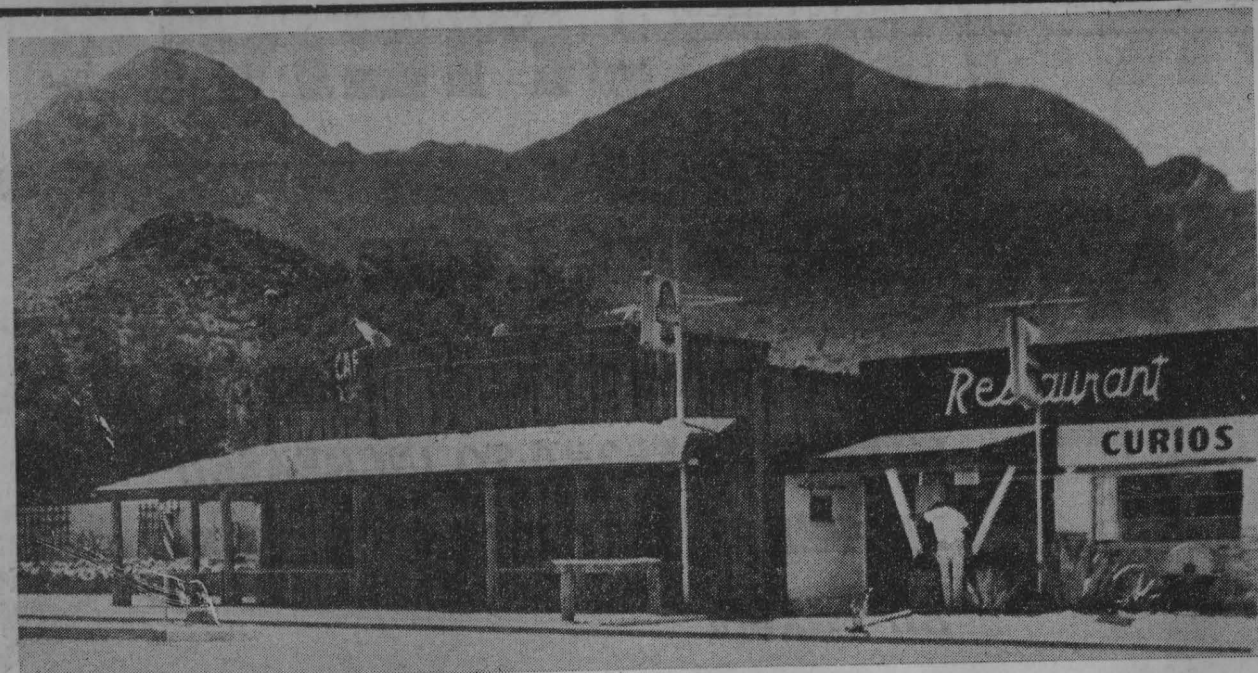

Tickets for "Volpone" may be reserved by calling the Playmakers box office on NMSU telephone extension 430. Box office hours are 1-5 p. m. and from 7 p. m. performance nights. Adult tickets are $1, students 50 cents. College students are admitted by activity card. Early ticket reservations are suggested because of the limited seating capacity of the theatre.

ORGAN MOUNTAIN LODGE, just a few minutes drive from Las Cruces on Highway 70 east, and just a few miles from White Sands Missile Range. The popular Lodge is located at the bottom of the Organ Mountain Pass and is visited by thousands of Las Cruces' as well as tourists throughout the year. George and Betty Chandler are owners and your most congenial hosts.

Organ Mountain Lodge; Good Food, Atmosphere

The little town of Organ on the western slope of the Organ Mountains boasts a popular restaurant called Organ Mountain Lodge. As rustic as it's setting, the lodge has pine panelled walls and a huge natural-rock fireplace bringing to life the days of the old west when prospectors and cowpunchers made up the small population.

The lodge specializes in good steaks. Many people drive the fifteen miles from Las Cruces to enjoy the food and atmosphere of Organ Mountain Lodge. There is also a cocktail lounge, bar, filling station and Curio shop.

The lodge is owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. George Chandler. The Chandlers have done much for the little mountain settlement. In 1948 the population was 15 persons. With White Sands Missile Range a few miles east, just over the mountain pass, Organ has grown into a thriving little town.

The Chandlers invite you to bring your parties up to the lodge, or drive up for an evening of relaxation and good food in a friendly atmosphere.

Many tourists stop in Organ to enjoy the scenic area, cool mountain air in summer and brisk winters with a beautiful view of the mountain.

Civilians Are Awarded For Sands Service

Paul Milnarich Jr. and Donovan W. Davenport, both of the Range Operations Directorate, were two of the more than 50 civilian personnel receiving job performance awards at a presentation ceremony this week at White Sands Missile Range.

Milnarich has worn leg and back supports and has been using crutches since he was three-and-a-half years old.

Davenport has had rheumatoid arthritis since 1957.

The citations given to these two men are part of the observance of National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week, which started on the 7th and will continue through the 13th.

Davenport received his award for a suggestion he made which was adopted and resulted in the design and use of a printed form for use in assessing missile data in the Attitude and Events Unit of Range Operations Directorate. This suggestion is saving the government approximately $1,300 annually. Davenport is currently assigned to Data Reduction Division of Range Operations Directorate as a physical science technician.

Milnarich received a cash award of $250 and a Commendation Certificate for sustained Superior Performance. He made major contributions to an intensive theoretical investigation of atmospheric degradation of tracking system performance. Milnarich is an electronic engineer, Range Instrumenta-

Davenport lives in Las Cruces with his wife, Joy, and their two children, Robert and Sharon.

Navy Wives Hold Business Meeting

A business meeting was held in the Community Center on 10 October 1962 by the members of the Navy Enlisted Mens' Wives Club. Fifteen members were present for the meeting and a guest, Mrs. Norma McKendree, was welcomed. Mrs. Vi Fountain.

Also a "Welcome Coffee" is being planned for the month of November for Navy wives who have recently arrived on post and new members of the club. Mrs. Dorothy Otto (ph 27219) is Chairman for this activity.

It was voted that a dinner meeting would be held during the Month of December. The time and place for this meeting will be decided by a special committee which consists of Mrs. Barbara Bindley, Chairman, Mrs. Kay Gleffee and Mrs. Pat Brotski. This committee will contact the members of the club when final arrangements for this meeting have been made.

AROUND POST

by Carol Rice

Oop's Goofed!

Gee tanks fella's and gals for your wonderful reaction to my obvious boo boo last week . . . I wrote that the Flag is flown at all times ONLY at FOUR places . . . Your assists led me to learn that it is also flown at the Marine Memorial and TAOS, N. M.

"The Tomorrow Country"

"The name California, is the invention of a fiction writer, Ordenez De Montalvo, who wrote around 1510: "At the right hand of the Indies there is an island called California, very near to the Terrestrial Paradise." Most Californians today would say that this man is a prophet . . . "Men To Match My Mountains," by Irving Stone ("Agony And The Ecstasy" and "Lust For Life") is a fine history of this state."

KUDOS

Bouquets this week to S/Sgt "Corky" Moore of the WAC Det, for her fine presentation on the Troop Topic "CUBA."

Teen Clubbers Visit Albuquerque

Members of the White Sands Teen Club visited Albuquerque last week and saw Sandia Base's Space Sphere, Albuquerque's Zoo and Old Towne.

Chaperones for the trip were provided by parents of the teens. One of the trip's highlights, I understand, was a photogenic baby elephant which entertained the kids with his antics. The Teen Club is sponsored by the Community Affairs Council and is only one of many missile range community organizations.

Nuthin' But The Facts Please

Know of an interesting news event that has happened or is about to happen here on post? If you do, please call 27286.

Gypsum N' Moonlight

Can you imagine a sky full of stars, a full moon with a rainbow around it no less, and miles and miles of gypsum? Well that's what some of us from the WAC Det were greeted with on our recent trip to the White Sands Monument. It's a beautiful place for a picnic . . . our thanks to Chaplain Seegars for a pipin hot meal (compliments of the Mess Hall). Suppose you're wondering what in the world has gypsum got to do with the White Sands Monument . . . Gypsum as defined by Mr. Webster is hydrated sulphate calcium . . . White Sands Monument is the largest deposit of this substance in this particular area.

Allhallow's Party

All eligible members and their guests are invited to attend the CPO's Club's Halloween Costume Party on the 26th of October. Limited number of advance tickets are now on sale at the Club.

President Signs Civilian Wage Hike

President Kennedy has signed into law the Federal pay-retirement-postal rate bill. The legislation will have numerous effects on Federal workers.

The pay raise will come in two steps, the first at the start of the first pay period after enactment into law and the second to be effective January 1st, 1964.

The overall increase will average about 10 per cent. It breaks down to 11.2 per cent for postal employees and 9 per cent for classified employees.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY . . . Don't make mountains out of mole hills or you'll have a lot of homeless moles on your hands.

VOTE FOR NEFF IN NOV.

CHARLES NEFF JR.

Charles Neff believes:

Government should be for the protection of everyone, not special interest groups.

That the future of our country as we know it lies with preserving the free enterprise system, and motivating individual interest.

DISTINGUISHED — Dorothy Chesser, shown above, Delpha Bleicher, and Flo Teitelbaum have been named as Red Cross Volunteers of the Month. The Red Cross Volunteers worked a total of 466 hours during September. Mrs. Chesser turned in the top figure with 48 hours as a Gray Lady, Mrs. Bleicher volunteered 40 hours as a Nurse Aide, and Mrs. Teitelbaum gave 16 hours as a Staff Aide. Mrs. Mary Welde, an American Red Cross Nurse, taught a Nurse Aide Course during the month, with 15 ladies completing classroom instruction and now starting hospital training. The next regular meeting for all Red Cross Volunteers will be Monday, Oct. 29 at the Community Center.

WSMR HONORS SCIENTIST—Guenther Hintze, right, "Mr. Flight Simulation" at White Sands Missile Range, N. M., receives a "WSMR Achievement Award for Research and Development" from Col. Martin Cunningham, chief of staff. The honorary award—the first ever given at the national missile range—is in recognition of Hintze's outstanding contributions to missile research and development through concepts of mathematical analysis and laboratory flight simulation techniques (U.S. Army Photo)

Warrant Officers And Enlisted Men College-bound

Washington (ANS) — Inclusion for the first time of warrant officers and enlisted personnel in the Army's program which permits selected individuals to satisfy degree requirements at accredited colleges and universities was announced by the Department of the Army.

The program, which has been in effect for commissioned officers since 1956, also includes provisions for a limited number of personnel to work toward completion of required research and theses for graduate degrees.

Purpose of the program is to improve further the quality of personnel at all levels.

To be selected for the training, applicants must satisfy the following prerequisites:

1. Be assigned within the continental United States and not enroute or on assignment orders to an overseas command. Individuals overseas may apply for schooling but will not be eligible until their tours are completed. Enlisted personnel with no overseas service or who have completed a 3 year CONUS tour of duty are not eligible to apply.
2. Possess high scholastic aptitude and career potential.
3. Be able to obtain a baccalaureate degree within 12 calendar months in a subject area of functional importance to the Army. Attainment of a law degree is not authorized.
4. If a graduate degree candidate, be able to obtain the degree within one semester or two quarters.
5. Be serving on active duty with a minimum of three years active federal service and, normally, have not more than 15 years' service for retirement purposes.

6. At the time schooling begins, applicants for baccalaureate degrees must have sufficient time to serve on current enlistment to insure two years of obligated service after completion of schooling; applicants for graduate degrees must have sufficient time on current enlistment to insure four years of obligated service after completion of schooling.

Applications from warrant officers may be forwarded through channels to Chief, Office of Personnel Operations, Headquarters, Department of the Army, ATTN: Control Branch, and from enlisted personnel to The Adjutant General, Headquarters, Department of the Army, ATTN: AGPS-G.
